Step 1: Assessment and planning

Our consultants work with your staff to review new functionality and document any customizations. We then prepare and deliver a detailed upgrade plan.

Step 2: Migration

We implement the new functionality where appropriate and test the updated business processes. Any retained customizations and interfaces are migrated to the new release. The whole system then undergoes integration testing to ensure that it meets your business requirements.

Step 3: Transition

Your organization is prepared for the live upgrade. New procedures are documented, end users trained, and the physical upgrade rehearsed to ensure it can be completed in the specified time.

Step 4: Support

Once your system has gone live, we can provide continued long-term support through the Infotegrity Assist application and database administration service. The Infotegrity Assist service cuts the overhead of application support and database administration without compromising on quality.
